Energy efficiency in warming months

By Timaree Nelson

A s the weather heats up, we want to provide our local businesses with tips on keeping their facilities running efficiently. These are the months when energy bills skyrocket, and wildfire and power outages increase. Here are some tips your business can use:

Operate with peak hours in mind. The price you pay to PG&E for electricity varies depending on when you are using it. Peak hours are 4 p.m. - 9 p.m., Monday-Friday, and Off-Peak (lowest price) hours are before 4 p.m. and after 9 p.m., Monday- Friday, and all hours on weekends.

• Find more details on PG&E's website!

• Keep your equipment in fighting shape. We recommend servicing your HVAC unit at least twice per year, but consider checking air filters more frequently, especially after fire season. Help your team breathe cleaner air while saving money.

• Understand your usage. Consider having an energy audit to prevent your business from losing energy through leaky gaskets, inefficient or excessive lighting and equipment use, and more. Try signing up with your local utility online to access your usage reports.

• Working from home? Work smarter not harder. See if you are eligible for PG&E's current Smart Thermostat Rebates. They may be able to offer you up to $120 to replace an existing manual or programmable thermostat with a smart thermostat that makes controlling your climate easier and more efficient.

• Fire safety reminder. It is peak fire season, and San Benito County falls within a medium-to-high risk zone.

• Don't forget the basics. Make it an action item to routinely check fire alarms and fire extinguishers. As needed, consider replacing old safety equipment and investing in smart technologies.

• Sign up to receive public safety alerts, access emergency checklists, etc. from PG&E. Visit both pge.com/wildfiresafety and safetyactioncenter.com.

The Monterey Green Business Program provides free technical assistance to get your business lean and green, and also offers up to $500 in rebates for businesses that complete certification. Reach out to Saburi Sai at ssai@environmentalin.com

CITY BEAT Fiscal year ends with public engagement

By Don Reynolds, City Manager

A swe launch budget town hall meetings and water rate study sessions in the next 3-6 weeks, we will try to hold these meetings in the Library.

In March, we signed a $50,000 contract to have the technology updated and have been waiting patiently to get our Council Chambers up to speed. The installation of new microphones, cameras and IT has been pushed from May 23 to May 30, 2022. Yes, COVID is on the rise again, and it continues to plague the logistics of these matters. The May 17 City Council meeting was scheduled to reveal a new drinking water study and proposed new rates. This has been pushed to May 24, and by the time this article is published, I am sure a lot of you would like more details. Assuming the public notice requirements start by Friday, May 27, 2022, the rates hearings would occur in June and end July 19, 2022.

The rate study from May 21, 2022 is being published on the City website and will be the focus of the public engagement meeting scheduled in the next 4 weeks. The rate increase does three things: 1) it pays for the capital improvements needed to import drinking water from the West Hills Treatment Plant, that will be blended at 2/3 surface water with 1/3 ground water; 2) it pays for the San Benito County Water District's cost to buy the water from the federal government (San Luis Reservoir), and 3) it pays for the 8% of the overhead and administrative costs associated with joining this regional water solution. The City's fair share of these costs is estimated at 8% based on the General Plan build-out and growth of 1.9% through 2040.

Between now and 2027, the rates and cost of water and sewer will grow 65% from approximately $200 per month to $335 per month. Water rates are based on 2 metrics the base rates applicable to every customer and the use/1000 gallons referred to as the volumetric rates. The Base Rates increases look like this:

2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027
55.76	$ 55.76	$ 65.91	$ 75.15	$ 85.68	$ 89.97	$ 94.47
		18%	14%	14%	5%	5%

Volumetric Rates (cost per 1,000 gallons) look like this:

2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027
$ 6.35	$ 7.05	$ 8.04	$ 9.17	$ 9.63	$ 10.12	$ 10.40
	11%	14%	14%	5%	5%	3%

This effort completes the job of upgrading water and the quality of life as we know it in San Juan Bautista. Please look for public meetings on this matter to begin in May and include June 14 and June 28, when I hope we will be back in Council Chambers! Feel free to give me a call or make an appointment. ■

COVER ARTIST Beto Val

Ecuadorian digital collage artist

eto Valencia, better known on Instagram as Beto Val, began his artistic ca-D reer in the world of collage almost by accident. From his small studio in Quito-Ecuador, this artist randomly discovered a large bank of public domain vintage illustrations with which he began experimenting and creating his first works. Initially, he did it as a sort of therapy to relief the stress of his daily work.

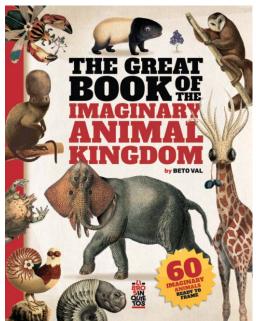

Little by little, this hobby became almost an obsession for the artist who now spends up to 4 hours a day exploring and creating new works.

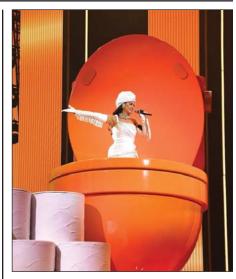

Beto Val's collages immerse us in a surreal world plagued by absurd and eccentric beings, who, nevertheless, are somehow familiar to us and whose existence is not only possible but necessary.

Wild aristocracy, amazing machines or animals from an imaginary animal kingdom, everything is possible in the mind of this creator who skillfully combines his vintage collage technique with photo retouching.

In "THE GREAT BOOK OF THE IMAGI-NARY ANIMAL KINGDOM" for sale on Amazon, Beto Val presents 60 carefully crafted collages from beautiful vintage animal illustrations. An ideal book to spark the imagination and creativity of readers of all ages.

You can discover more of his work on the artist's website: www.elbetoval.com or his Instagram profile: @elbetoval enitoLink hosted its Let's Talk Journalism dinner on May 7 at the Baumgartner Ranch in San Juan Bautista. The event was sponsored by BenitoLink, Morris Grassfed Beef and the Community Foundation for San Benito County.

'Let's Talk Journalism' dinner brings foreign correspondents, local community leaders together

Approximately 30 community members attended at the invitation of BenitoLink. Foreign correspondent Ralph Jennings and career journalist Cindy Sui, who are married, spoke about their experiences reporting from China for major news organizations.

Jennings has worked for Reuters in Taipei, Taiwan, and has reported in East Asia for Associated Press, Forbes Media, The Los Angeles Times and Voice of America. Sui has reported for local, regional and international media in the U.S. and East Asia, including the International Herald Tribune, Los Angeles Times and NBC News.

Sui has reported for local, regional and international media in the U.S. and East Asia, including the International Herald Tribune, Los Angeles Times and NBC News. She also worked for years as the BBC's Taiwan correspondent up until last summer, when she moved back to the U.S.

The couple shared their experiences as foreign journalists in China, where they said free speech is suppressed. They touched on U.S. relations with China since the Russian invasion of Ukraine; spoke about the validity of information that American reporters publish, and the manner in which foreign journalists in China obtain information and interviews for their stories.

San Juan Bautista resident Phil Esparza, who also serves on BenitoLink's board of directors, felt the event was a "great first step" in highlighting the current and problematic issues that perhaps hinder American journalists from bringing factual and complete stories to the public.

Esparza particularly shared his concerns on the local level, and said he would like to see something similar to this gathering occur in San Benito County's local newsrooms.

"We need to figure out ways to have a session with the staff, with these same professionals, because I think they would learn so much," Esparza said. "Because BenitoLink is a local information and news source, we have to increase the trust bond with the entire community. They may not always agree with what's being said, but we need to get the full story so that people are informed."

Do you like these events? Your donations help cover these costs and your support is essential to continuing these public services. Consider donating to BenitoLink during our spring campaign. All donations from now till June 7 will be matched up to 10K thanks to a generous BenitoLink supporter. Donate today!

FINANCIAL FOCUS New limits expand 401(k), IRA opportunities

Ou could spend two, or even three, decades in retirement. So, to pay for all those years, you'll probably need to take full advantage of your retirement accounts. And in 2022, you may have expanded opportunities to deduct retirement plan contributions on your tax return.

Before looking at what's changed this year, let's review the key benefits of these accounts:

• Traditional IRA – You typically contribute pretax (deductible) dollars to a traditional IRA, and your earnings can grow tax-deferred.

• Roth IRA – You invest after-tax dollars in a Roth IRA, so your contributions won't lower your taxable income, but your earnings can grow tax free, provided you've had your account at least five years and you're 59½ or older when you begin taking withdrawals.

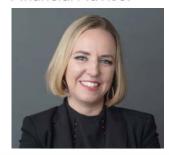

• 401(k) - A 401(k) or similar plan (such as a 457(b) for state and local government employees or a 403(b) for employees of public schools or nonprofit groups) is generally funded with pretax dollars and provides tax-deferred earnings. Some employers offer a Roth 401(k), in which employees contribute after tax-dollars and can take tax-free withdrawals if they meet the same age and length-of-ownership requirements as the Roth IRA. So, what's different about these plans in 2022? First, consider the traditional IRA. If you – and your spouse, if you're married – don't have a 401(k) or similar plan, you can always deduct the full amount of your contribution on your tax return, no matter what you earn. But if one or both of you are covered by an employer-sponsored plan, then your deductions could be reduced or eliminated based on your income.

Single taxpayers can claim the full deduction if your modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) is $68,000 or less ($109,000 for married filing jointly), with deductibility decreasing at higher income levels and phasing out entirely at $78,000 ($129,000 for married filing jointly). But here's the key point: Compared to 2021, these ranges are $2,000 higher for single filers and $4,000 higher for those who are married and filing jointly – which means that this year, you might have more opportunities to make deductible contributions.

And a similar type of increase applies to Roth IRA eligibility. In 2022, if you're a single filer, you can put in up to $6,000 ($7,000 if you are 50 or older) in a Roth IRA if your modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) is less than $129,000 – up from $125,000 in 2021. Allowable contributions are reduced at higher income levels and phased out if your MAGI is $144,000 or more, up from $140,000 in 2021. If you're married and file jointly, the respective ranges are $204,000–$214,000, up from $198,000–$208,000 in 2021. Again, higher ranges may mean more opportunities for you. (Consult your tax advisor to determine your eligibility to contribute to a Roth IRA or make deductible contributions to a traditional IRA.) And finally, the annual contribution limit for 401(k), 457(b) and 403(b) plans is $20,500 – up $1,000 from 2021. If you're 50 or older,

Alexis Winder, AAMS[®] Financial Advisor

you can put in an extra $6,500 this year, for a total of $27,000.

These changes may not seem monumental, but when you're saving for retirement, any opportunities to invest and potentially reduce taxes, of whatever size, can be valuable. So, review your options to determine how you can help yourself move closer to your retirement goals.

voicing some thoughts Nostalgia

By Halina Kleinsmith

The good old days. Way back when. Going down memory lane...

These phrases are normally expressed by the eldest person in a gathering, usually accompanied by a winsome smile and glint of pleasure in the eyes of the narrator.

To wax nostalgic is a fortunate pastime, denoting that one has recollections pleasant or astounding enough to relive, and want to share with others.

Admittedly, friends and family members of the storyteller may roll their eyes or even groan with a "here we go again" comment, yet you'll notice even those who've already heard it a million times are smiling, knowing the impending punchline, or the surprising content of the tale.

My being the youngster in my clan meant family members and visitors were years, and even decades, older than myself.

Teenagers surrounded me in gogo boots, Nehru jackets, fringed leather and tiedye. The Mod look arrived from Europe, and 'free dress' days in grammar school allowed us to show off versions of these latest hip styles.

Newspapers, movies, magazines and television provided us the sights and sounds of the Summer of Love. Being too young to attend the iconic concerts, we'd hear their music on our transistor radios.

A huge roster of adventuresome tales and close calls were also shared, including an aunt relating the days of Al Capone, when she'd run through an artichoke field in her silk stockings to evade the feds, who thought she and her gal pals were part of his posse!

With that as an example, I don't walk away from the chance to enjoy spoken history, and learn what I can from those with more years and different experiences than myself.

In return, I make an effort to share what knowledge and pertinent reminiscences I can with younger ones. Surprisingly, many have been kind enough to listen and care, and not 'sigh' impatiently.

I encourage you to also embrace sharing your perspectives on our ever evolving world through your own unique experiences, and contribute to broadening the scope of our up and comers.

Did I ever tell you the one about...

IN MEMORY Peter Lottermoser December 16, 1940 - April 12, 2022

ocal restaurant owner and chef for 30 years, Peter Lottermoser was born in Germany and shared his birthday with Beethoven. His first love was his precious harmonica, which he played by ear from the age of 5.

He entered his trade at culinary school at the age of 12 and immigrated to America at age 19. He was employed by the Hyatt Corporation and worked as an executive Chef there for 17 years before coming to San Juan Bautista in 1980.

He and his wife Joan operated the Donkey Deli and Joan and Peter's German Restaurant, as it was renamed.

Peter was known for his excellent culinary talent and the many Oktoberfests and musical festivities that were held in the garden. He shared his love of music through the years with his many customers who came for the fun and good German food.

He is survived by his wife Joan, 3 children, 3 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

Also missing him is his dog Buster, who loved his harmonica playing. ■

Then... and Now: Then, Campo Santa Nuevo; Now, SJB District Cemetery

By Wanda Guibert, SJB Historical Society

n October 24, 1839, I blessed the Campo Santo Nuevo (New Cemetery, which because the cemetery adjoining the church could hold no more bodies, was laid out away from the church)."- Father Antonio Anzar, O.F.M.

These words were inscribed onto a bronze plaque and mounted on a low adobe wall at the base of the hill at the San Juan Bautista Cemetery at 70 Monterey Street. Also included on the plaque was the following text.

"A part of Rancho de San Antonio, granted to Manuel Larios. Don Manuel gave this cemetery site, reserving the S.W. corner for Larios family burials.

"Marked by the San Juan Bautista Parlor No. 179, Native Daughters of the Golden West, October 28, 1966 in memory of pioneers and early settlers buried here."

Today both the wall and the Campo Santo plaque are gone. In 2013, at least 2 plaques were stolen from the Cemetery as well as the plaque honoring the San Juan Bautista WW II Veterans at the VFW Post 6359 just across the street. The low adobe wall where a San Juan Bautista Historical Society plaque commemorating Patrick and Margaret Breen -- survivors of the ill-fated Donner Party who settled in San Juan -- remains, but that plaque was stolen at the same time. After the Campo Santo plaque disappeared, the wall on which it had been mounted was removed. Fortunately, photos and relevant history remain at the Historical Marker Database (HMdb.org) Campo Santo Nuevo page https://www.hmdb.org/m.asp?m=125365.

According to the Images of America San Juan Bautista book, the Mission cemetery on the north side of the church opened in 1797, and the last person to be interred was Ascension Solarsano, a direct descendant of the Mutsun Indians, who died in 1930. Most of the Spanish, Mexican, and European settlers of the period were buried in the new cemetery west of town.

Originally part of the Rancho San Antonio land grant, the San Juan cemetery was deeded to the people of San Juan by Manuel Larios, one of the original Spanish Castilian "Dons." Larios divided the cemetery into two parts, one part Catholic and the other Protestant. Numerous pioneers of varied nationalities and religions are buried here, and it remains an active cemetery for the people of San Juan Bautista. When Don Larios gifted the land for the cemetery, he reserved for his family the southwest section fronting Monterey Street, which is still maintained by Larios family descendants.

The Baptist Church known today as the Glad Tidings was built in 1863 and originally located in the Protestant section of the cemetery, on Monterey Street (not Church Street, which is where the Methodist Church was located). In1886, a Congregational denomination had it moved to its present site at the southwest corner of Third and Muckelemi Streets. The San Juan Bautista Cemetery District was formed in 1953, initiated and spearheaded by San Juan-born Audel "Dell" Laveroni (1916-2005) with the Service Club, prominent local citizens and church officials. Dell was a lifelong San Benito County resident, and after WWII, worked as the Assistant County Clerk, later transferring to Western Title, and retiring as Vice-President. He was always very active in the community. In the 30 January 1990 issue of the "Salinas Californian," then Cemetery District manager Hal Bohn (who held that title for 20 years) is quoted as saying, "Cemetery records were not kept until 1953, so many buried there remain forever anonymous." Bohn also added, "The graves of the Catholics would face south, and the Protestants would face east." The late Tony Boch, District Cemetery committee chairman for many years, tried very hard to map out all the graves and reconstruct the records of the nearly 200-year-old cemetery. The San Juan Cemetery District is included in District 2 of the County of San Benito, supported by property taxes. The 3 members of this Board are not elected but instead appointed by the District 2 Board of Supervisor; boardmembers are Pat Garratt, Drew Neubauer (Mission Realty), and Andy Moore (Pierce Real Estate).

The heart-shaped cemetery, once surrounded by cypress trees, was photographed by the famed American photographer Ansel Adams. Adams shot the San Juan cemetery photograph (see inset) around 1970, one hundred years after the death of Sarah Ann Ross (1833 ¬¬-1870), whose gravestone he immortalized in the photograph. Sarah was the wife of Benjamin F. Ross, the first sheriff of San Benito County. Ansel Adams has left a legacy of magnificent photographs, but his words are equally

The Saddle Horse Show & Rodeo is a San Benito County tradition since 1929.

The return of the rodeo

By Karminder Brown fter a two-year hiatus from business as usual, the San Benito County Saddle Horse Show

San Benito Agricultural

& Rodeo returns full-swing this June 24-26 at Bolado Park and Event Center, just south of Hollister. In 2020, the Rodeo and County Fair were cancelled for the first time since WWII. Both returned with modified programs in 2021. This year the Saddle Horse Show & Rodeo offers a return to the historic event which draws thousands of people eager to celebrate San Benito County's agricultural heritage.

Held the last weekend in June since 1929, the rodeo celebrates the unique "vaquero" style of cowboying in San Benito County and is a place where local ranchers showcase their horsemanship. The rodeo also includes children's competitions, the Miss San Benito Rodeo Queen contest, and a Western Art & Tack Show that features a variety of fine leather, jewelry, paintings, clothing, gear, and hand-crafted tack.

Bob Connolly, an SBALT volunteer whose two grown children competed in rodeo events when they were young, recalls "Rodeo was a great time for learning the care and feeding of the horses, as well as the discipline required for competing in all the events in the Saddle Horse Show. Believe me, they learned a lot about work ethic and respect for the animals."

Grandstand General Admission tickets are available for $15/adults and $8/children. Visit www.sanbenitocountyrodeo.com for more information, to purchase tickets, or to learn how you can help keep these traditions alive.

And don't miss the free, kick-off event for the Rodeo, the Saddle Horse Show Downtown Parade at 11:00 am, Saturday, June 18th in downtown Hollister. This parade is an absolute must for newcomers to San Benito County!

Arrive early to claim a good viewing spot on San Benito Street.

SBALT is proud to be a sponsor of this year's Saddle Horse Show & Rodeo, in recognition of and appreciation for the land stewardship and heritage of the ranchers in our community. Our mission is to conserve regionally significant lands that sustain productive agriculture, preserve open space and maintain the rural character of the county. Look for our banner in the arena, and learn more at www.sanbenitolandtrust.org.

MISSION VILLAGE VOICE Q&A

Brygn Ellwanger

Director/teacher at GreenSong Forest School

By Anne Caetano

Mathematical School in San Juan Bautista, the only nature program in San Benito County. GreenSong is an outdoor Forest School for home-schooled children ages 5 – 12. The school is complete with ponds, a mud kitchen, a higgledy-wiggledy path, a fire pit, lots of trees and wildlife in which the children can create and explore.

Contact Brygn Ellwanger at 831.623.1162 or email brygn@greensongforestschool.org or Facebook GreenSong Forest School.

MVV: How big is your program?

BE: We currently have 14 kids and two teachers.

Are all the kids from San Benito County?

Many, but not all. We've had children from Prunedale, Salinas, Marina, Monterey, and even Menlo Park.

Is it year-round?

We're called GreenSong Forest School, not because we are an academic school, but because we follow the school calendar. We are a twice a week nature immersion program, Mondays and Thursdays 10am – 1pm, beginning at the end of August and running through May. We also offer a two-week all day summer camp in June.

How long has GreenSong Forest School been around?

We opened 4 years ago when I moved back to California. Before opening Green-Song, I worked for 6 years in outdoor education at Sundance Mountain Resort in Utah.

Is Forest School a German concept?

Yes, Friederich Froebel began the first Forest Kindergarten in Germany in 1837. He believed that children learn best by directly experiencing nature. A couple years later, he coined the word "Kindergarten" which literally means a "garden of children." Friederich Froebel observed that the connections that children make while playing — what we now call whole body learning — forms deeper understanding in a young child's long-term memory than were they to sit at a desk and memorize facts.

If you want to have smart children, then you'll be relieved to find out that the foundation for fostering a lifelong love and aptitude for learning is simply to play with your child outside!

Forest School children are learning

S.T.E.M. in nature.

As a child splashes in water, races leaf and stick boats, digs new channels for the water to flow along, and dams up the stream with mud and rocks, this child is learning in the most relevant way what displacement, volume, mass, conservation, and buoyancy mean. Children in an outdoor, play-based nature program understand science intuitively in a way that they would not were they to sit at a desk and learn about these same concepts watching a video or even a live demonstration. There are so many really cool studies that have explored the relationship between long-term academic success with playing in nature as a child.

And now you are at the end of the school year.

We are at the end of the year, and the kids are so beautifully at home in nature. They come to class and immediately delve into their own self-directed projects. Forest School is all about child-led learning; that means the teacher does not come to class with a lesson plan, but we observe the interests of each child and create learning opportunities around what is important to them. Teaching a child about what is fascinating and relevant to what they are currently seeing and touching is how we raise children who love to learn.

Are the kids OK with cold rainy weather?

We are a rain or sunshine all-outdoors program, and the quote "There is no such thing as bad weather, only bad clothing" is so true! Our "GreenSong Uniform" consists of one-piece rain suits and boots. Rainy days are our most magical days!

This is a sanctuary!

It really is! Where we are standing right now is a seasonal pond. In the winter, our stream engorges with rainwater and fills this pond large enough for us to paddle the canoe in it. The canoe has a hole at one end, which makes for a lot of fun; the children paddle the canoe into the middle of the pond, scooping water out with buckets, and then they try to sink it. The canoe is an openended object of imagination and has become so many things. It is a school bus. It is a rocket ship. Turn it over, and it becomes a drum. The play around it is endless.

What about snakes and spiders?

In the beginning you see children that are terrified of spiders and snakes, but by the end they admire all our forest friends. Seeing a particularly large spider or snake is now a highlight in their day.

Are those your goats up by the St. Francis Retreat?

No, we brought in 700 goats. There's a company, GOATS R US, that does fire mitigation and poison oak control by renting out their goats. We rented them for a month, and oh, my gosh, it was so much fun! We would literally walk through a sea of goats to get to our Forest School base camp. It was surreal for the children.

Is this pottery the kids made?

Yes, this area is called Clay Cove because the soil here has high clay content. In the winter it is damp and ready to use, and in the summer we use water from the stream to hydrate it. We make pottery from these natural clay deposits and bake them in the sun.

Playing in dirt releases serotonin; it's good for your brain and your emotions. In the beginning many children are hesitant to get dirty. After a couple weeks, the children are in self-made mud t-shirts, mud gloves, you name it.

Wow! Did the kids build this structure? Yes. Three weeks ago the children wanted to turn the fort they had made at the beginning of the year into a yurt, so they tore it down and began all over again. At the end of every year, I deconstruct all the children's structures so that the next year's class can create their own spaces. It has been very cool over the years to watch the children create such varied and different forms of shelter.

This looks like a foxhole.

Yes! There was one child in our class this year who was very quiet, and after having gotten used to the isolation caused by the pandemic, he continued to isolate himself from the other children. He would spend every class digging out this underground cave. As it got bigger and deeper, the other children wanted to join in, and it became this collaborative project that was the catalyst for him making friends and talking with the other children. This project took about 2 months to complete.

And your Summer Camp?

It runs June 13 - 24.

We have a 9am-12pm forest school component where we create nature art, explore water play in our year-round stream, tell stories, sculpt with clay from our natural clay deposits, bird watch, forage for wild edibles, whittle, and expand upon the innumerable interests sparked in the children as they adventure through nature.

We then have an optional afternoon extension from 12pm-3pm that is new to this year's summer camp. I'm particularly excited for this, as it begins with a Farm to Table cooking class where I prepare a meal from scratch with the children. We'll use greens that we foraged during Forest School as part of our meals! After the cooking class, we'll alternate days between water play and "Barn School" where children play in an open-air barn with horse stalls converted into a math game room, a library, a makebelieve play room, and a craft room.

And your Saturday Pop-ups?

Starting September 2022, anyone can come, pay a drop-in fee and spend the day here. No need to register for the 9-month school year.

What surprised you most about Forest School?

Forest School has taught me that what a young child needs is the time in which to be bored... and a space to constructively work herself out of that boredom. We do not allow our kids time to be bored anymore! The second a child whines, we stick a screen in front of them. But boredom is so important in a child's emotional and intellectual development! It has been said that boredom is the mother of invention, and after years of working with a myriad of children, I can testify to the truth of that! The aftermath of a bored child in the house can be devastating (crayon marks on the walls and furniture, flour all over the kitchen floor...), but the aftermath of a bored child in nature is glorious!

What has surprised me the most about Forest School as a mother is that it simplified how I approached being a "good parent." I spend a lot of time with my kids outside.

It must be so rewarding.

It's highly rewarding! And I am so very grateful for our parents who encourage their children to come to school and get muddy and take risks — what a community of amazing families! It has been really fulfilling for me to hear back from the parents that their children grow more self-sufficient and self-entertaining, sleep deeper, focus better on their homeschool lessons, and are physically hardier because of their time at GreenSong.

You have such passion for this.

As a teacher, the biggest service I can do is cultivate kindness and compassion among my students. I truly believe that our connection to the land on which we walk is a critical indicator of our capability to love one another. It is so easy to think only of ourselves and our immediate pleasure in experiencing nature. In caring for and protecting Mother Earth, we show our consideration for not just plants and animals, but we also show our consideration for our peers. We enable our contemporaries to have the same experience finding peace and balance in nature as we enjoy, and we enable the next generation to as well. Children that understand their impact and power to affect others' experiences are children that are thoughtful, gracious, and full of love.

What motivated you to start your own nature program?

My mission in running GreenSong Forest School is that children leave this program feeling a greater sense of wholeness because they have discovered through joyous play that they are part of a grand and beautiful world. My dearest hope is that the children of GreenSong Forest School do not just love being in nature but also love nature. I am optimistic that emboldened by love, they can play their part in changing the world in a way that blesses not only themselves, but generations after them.

I believe that GreenSong is cultivating model citizens of the world. You cannot care for the Earth if you do not have a relationship with the Earth, and these children do!

June 14 - Full Moon Supermoon in Sagittarius. The Moon will be located on the opposite side of the Earth as the Sun and its face will be will be fully illuminated. This phase occurs at 11:52 UTC. This full moon was known by early Native American tribes as the Strawberry Moon because it signaled the time of year to gather ripening fruit. It also coincides with the peak of the strawberry harvesting season. This moon has also been known as the Rose Moon and the Honey Moon. This is also the first of three supermoons for 2022. The Moon will be near its closest approach to the Earth and may look slightly larger and brighter than usual.

June 16 - Mercury at Greatest Western Elongation. The planet Mercury reaches greatest western elongation of 23.2 degrees from the Sun. This is the best time to view Mercury since it will be at its highest point above the horizon in the morning sky. Look for the planet low in the eastern sky just before sunrise.

June 21 - June Solstice. The June solstice occurs at 09:05 UTC. The North Pole of the earth will be tilted toward the Sun, which will have reached its northernmost position in the sky and will be directly over the Tropic of Cancer at 23.44 degrees north latitude. This is the first day of summer (summer solstice) in the Northern Hemisphere and the first day of winter (winter solstice) in the Southern Hemisphere.

June 29 - New Moon in Cancer. The Moon will located on the same side of the Earth as the Sun and will not be visible in the night sky. This phase occurs at 02:53 UTC. This is the best time of the month to observe faint objects such as galaxies and star clusters because there is no moonlight to interfere.

ASK RECOLOGY Celebrate Summer sustainably!

By Gabbie Ulloa

With the weather warming up, I am eager to get outside and organize some fun events and spend time with my friends and family. Do you have any ideas to make them earthfriendly?

Summery from Sunnyslope

Dear Summery,

Summer is a great time to spend outdoors with loved ones, especially here in San Benito. There are so many outdoor spaces nearby that would make great spots for hosting your events. Here are a few things to keep in mind to make them eco-friendly and fun!

When it comes to barbeques and picnics, using reusables instead of disposables can keep your gathering eco-friendly and save you money! In 2014 nearly 343 million tons of plastic were discarded in the US. The best way to avoid adding to this discouraging statistic is to bring reusable utensils, plates, cups, and other barbeque essentials. Planning ahead and finalizing your menu early can also assist in preventing unnecessary food waste. Knowing how many people you're expecting can significantly reduce your waste by preventing overbuying. With the Hollister Farmer's Market now up and running, consider featuring local foods on the menu. This will reduce the environmental footprint of your event and support your local communitv!

When it comes to planning get-togethers with friends and family, you might also consider planning an experiential event such as a hiking day to explore nearby trails! I'd recommend June 6 for your next trip, which is National Trails Day! We are very fortunate here with so many options within a short distance. Before hitting the trails, be sure to pack your snacks in reusable bags and containers and bring a refillable water bottle. Not only will you get in some great activity, but you'll also be able to enjoy the beautiful weather and spend some bonding time with those you care about.

Zero Wastingly, Gabbie Ulloa

Origins The Third Degree

here are several tales about the origin of "the third degree," a saying

L commonly used for long or arduous interrogations. One theory argues the phrase relates to the various degrees of murder in the criminal code; yet another credits it to Thomas F. Byrnes, an 19th century New York City policeman who used the pun "Third Degree Byrnes" when describing his hardnosed questioning style. In truth, the saying is more likely derived from the Freemasons, a centuries old fraternal organization whose members undergo rigorous questioning and examinations before becoming "third degree" members, or "master masons,"

THOMMELIER Etiquette and decorum go hand in hand with wine

By Thomas Brenner, Sommelier Palo Alto Hills Golf & Country Club

pinion: Wine is always a wonderful thing to be surrounded by. But it is, like so many things in life, all about what you make of it. Wine can play a part in backwater, trashy front porch rompers, or it may serve to augment the wuthering heights of a ballroom gala charitable event ... in Monaco! The choice is yours. And I encourage you to enjoy any wine any way you'd like. After all, wine is classy, accessible, farfetched, bougey, furthers togetherness, and gets you feeling great. It heightens experiences and reveals all.

A customary code of polite behavior in society would benefit not only those that surround you, but may also aid you in furthering your own experience with the wondrous elixir we refer to as wine: alcoholized fruit juice and the people sipping it.

Etiquette, decorum and propriety go hand in hand with the wine world. The illustrious world of wine has often been stigmatized as pretentious, unattainable and sometimes far-fetched. This school of thought should not necessarily be deemed as fact because wine etiquette centers around a profound enhancement of social, cultural and environmental goings-on. And you may ask yourself, "How is wine etiquette relevant to me?" It turns out, etiquette is all-encompassing. When applied in terms of wine stuff, it can enhance business dinners, meeting the parents, formal gatherings, under-bridge drinking and classy dinner dates.

Most blowhards would inform you that it's white before red, dry before sweet and light before heavy. Drink lesser wines before better wines, sparkling before still and young before mature. A theme is always advised. French? Reds? Region? Vintage? Enjoy an appetizer with an aperitif: dry vermouth, sparkling wine, dry (not sweet) white. Take in your salad with Riesling, Gewurztraminer, rosé, sparkling, Chablis or Sauvignon Blanc. Soup goes with white Burgundy or vintage Champagne. Fish and fowl mesh with white wine or dry Champagne while game, as well as other red meats, are advised to be paired with dry red wines.

On it goes. Cheese goes with sweet wines, such as Madeira, Marsala, Port, Sherry, Tokaji, Riesling, or Sherry. Chocolate should be paired with port or cream sherry. Finally, maybe follow with some sweet vermouth. Or not. These are merely textbook, basic, rigid principles, not rules. Drink what you enjoy with what you enjoy eating. Red wine with fish, I say.

Remember to serve and enjoy wine at the perfect temperature after it has been stored at the perfect temperature correlating with its style. Let the wine breathe and maybe aerate it, if needed. Decant them for 1-2 hours if they're young reds, and only about 30 minutes (if at all) for mature reds over 8 years. Very old wines shouldn't be decanted, nor should rosé, sparkling or most white wines. Splash decant young wines and decant old wines over a candle and white background to aid in trapping sediment at the bottle's neck. Allowing air to infiltrate wine can reawaken flavors and bring the wine back to life after being locked away in a bottle all this time.

How do I open a bottle? Wipe any moisture or dust from it and cut the foil under the lip. For sparkling wines, twist the cage's wire $5\frac{1}{2}$ to 6 times, open quietly (like a ninja's sigh), by twisting the bottle from below and holding your thumb steadily over the cork while not pointing the cork toward anyone.

There's also a pouring order, prioritized by the host, then the guest of honor, the ladies, gents, and all this in a clockwise fashion. My personal wine selection ideally includes prioritizing sweet-spot, reputable "small region" selections relative to price point, from talented producers over exceptional vintages (research and experience is recommended for the latter two, should a sommelier not be on hand). Those of us wearing lipstick should sip from the same part of the glass for each sip, it's been said. Put a napkin on your lap, they say. But, truly never drink and drive. Pace yourself. Don't throw up. After all, you taste with your palate, not with your stomach. Leave your cell phone off the table and don't brag. Or not. You do you. Just drink what you want, with whom you want, where you want. Cheers, Friend.

Please send your wine questions to Mission Village Voice and be featured in next month's article. I would love to hear from our dear readership.

Dental care for veterans in need

Dentistry4Vets is a non-profit dental office located at The Montage Wellness Center in Marina, CA that treats military veterans in need and suffering from a lack of dental care. The Community Foundation for San Benito County awarded a $5,000 grant to Dentistry4Vets in the fall of 2021 which has enabled the clinic to treat military veterans who are residents of San Benito County.

Services for veterans include a comprehensive dental exam plus x-rays, fillings, extractions, crowns, bridges, and partial/full dentures. Dentistry4Vets FIVE promises to veterans are: 1) Continuity of care for long term overall good health; 2) Comprehensive care to include the services mentioned above plus referrals to dental specialists in the community; 3) Quality care for veterans ensuring they receive a high standard of care; 4) Cost-benefit of care with a discounted fee schedule to assist in making treatment affordable, and 5) Ease of care because we only serve veterans- we understand their special needs and strive to make our dental office a safe and caring environment, especially for veterans.

Julian Atkins, a veteran of the United States Air Force and a resident of San Benito County was suffering due to not being able to eat and feeling embarrassed by the appearance of his teeth. He indicated his self-esteem was low and that he did not smile. As a result of receiving treatment from Dentistry4Vets, he says his "overall health and social interactions" have improved. What's more, his pain levels decreased from moderate pain to no pain, and he is now smiling!

The service is only possible due to community support. This grant was leveraged with other grant funding, financial donations, and in-kind contributions including from volunteer dentists and specialists, in order to maximize the number of veterans treated and the level of treatment. Poets' Corner is the name traditionally given to a section of Westminster where a number of poets, playwrights, and writers are buried and commemorated there. Burial in Poets' Corner is regarded as a great honour, granted only to the greatest of writers. However, some of the people buried there are not as famous as they once were, their literary reputations having faded over time.

HOROSCOPE JUNE 2022 by Hilda De Anza

ARIES

March 21-April 20 You'll be in an extremely competitive frame of mind, with a single goal in mind that you are determined to reach. Economic transformation is likely, perhaps there are some toxic assets you need to drop, and some productive assets you need to focus on. This month promises to be successful in almost any area you choose to channel your energy into. Communication projects that have been delayed will give excellent results in mid-June.

April 21-May 21 Around the 12th, you can expect surprising developments connected with career, a relationship, or involvement with a group of people who are geared towards change and the future. Mid-June is a time when you attend to your own agenda without compromise, and no one is going to be able to tell you what to do. Towards the end of June, the focus turns towards money-making ideas. This is a time when financial alliances are made.

with your sign ruler Mercury retrograde, and this indicates that you are in a transition period. From mid-June onwards things really go your way, and the full moon in Sagittarius on the 14th is extremely favorable for partnership, friendships, and group projects. A bond that was forged back in early May can be reestablished because someone vou want to connect with is now in a much freer situation and eager to take dynamic action.

CANCER

June 22-July 22 Extremely dynamic trends are at play during the month of June, and it is a time for leadership initiatives. Creative professional ventures thrive right now. There are perhaps more challenging developments on the social scene.

The last week of June is an extremely dynamic and perhaps rather fraught period, if you forge ahead without humility you can end up misjudging the situation.

LE0 July 23-August 22

June is an extremely positive and upbeat period for you. The adventurer comes out in you, and you'll want to spread your wings and explore the world. It's a great month for friendships and having fun in general, especially around the full moon on June 14th, which is a time when dreams and fantasies raise high hopes. During the last week or so of June you'll want to get away from it all, be less involved in social arrangements, and perhaps start traveling.

VIRGO August 23-September 22

Early June you may be working on resolving some tough communication issues affecting work or studies. By the full moon on the 14th, you'll be ready to pick up where you left off in your career and forge dynamic and successful business relationships. There are high hopes in your career, and in your family life too, and dreams of expansion. By the end of June however, there is a major change of emphasis, with economic benefits and strong professional connections bringing dynamic change and career advancement.

As June begins, you will be engaged with dynamic partners, who treasure their independence, are willing to take risks and have adventures, and who generally open new horizons for you. At the same time, you extricate yourself from too much dependency and quard your own values, resources, and autonomy. This all changes during the last week of June, when you emerge from your self-protective cocoon and are ready to explore new horizons. This is very favorable for partnership and especially for travel.

SCORPIO October 23-November 21

You are tremendously energized in June, and very conscious about health and fitness. This energy is also channeled into your working life, and you can expect considerable expansion and a much greater demand on your leadership abilities. By the end of June, things lighten up and there is a lot more flexibility and openness to excitement and adventure in your relationships. This is a month of deep psychological insights when secrets are uncovered.

SAGITTARIUS November 22-December 21

for relationships, and for the single Sagittarian a tentative bond made last month can prove to be the spark that starts a longer-term relationship. Someone who was lost from view appears on the horizon again, and an extremely fruitful relationship can begin.

This is a time to dig in, and you will want to economize. This is an extremely dynamic period for family life, and a hectic atmosphere prevails at home. June promises to be a successful and productive time for work and partnership, and new colleagues are full of excellent ideas which promote communication, marketing, and general outreach to others. Everyone seems to be functioning optimally, and this is going to be good for finances.

> AQUARIUS January 21-February 19 This promises to be a well-oiled month, when the people in your life are at their best, and everyone seems to be experiencing benefits all round. This is a time to step back. You've achieved a lot, and what you need now is not to strive more but to look back over what you have achieved, adjusting things here and there so those well-oiled wheels keep on spinning. June is a great time for relationships, and the full moon on the 14th signals a fruitful time for both love and friendship. This is a good time to socialize and to expand your circle of friends.

February 20-March 20 This is an extremely dynamic time for you, and you seem to have unlimited energy to go and get whatever you want. You are in a competitive frame of mind, and willing to take financial risks to start pioneering ventures. June promises to be an excellent month for relationships, both for the single Pisces and the Pisces with a family. Bonds tentatively created last month can now be re-created. The difference is that your situation has changed, so that you now can embark on alliances which vou could not make earlier. You've changed from a lazy fish into a swordfish, and you are willing to chase away the competition.

BOOK EXCERPT A Girl Named Siri

Her parents named her Siri years ago,

A very pretty, not so common name.

Back then there was no way that they could know

The iPhone lady would be named the same.

Folks thought that she should now know everything.

They sought directions, wanted her advice, Asked private stuff, requested that she sing, And many times were anything but nice.

She thought, " A name change might improve my life."

A lawyer filed the proper forms in court. It seemed to put an end to all her strife. Alas, her time of happiness was short.

The format might sound a little bit dry – each time ordinary people reflect on a different song or piece of music and its significance to them – but every single time it carries a serious emotional wallop. Recently it's covered David Bowie's 'Life on Mars?' and Talking Heads' 'Once in a Lifetime', but the archive spans 31 series going back 20 years, and often the best ones are those about music you've never heard before.

2022 Women's Retreat: Women in Church History: Touching Our Lives Today

June 17-19, 2022 | $320.00 per person (single occupancy) $270.00 per person (double occupancy)

Women have been an essential part of the development of the Church, from first century Christianity to contemporary times. Our reflections will be on those women who were deaconesses in the first centuries, women of the Patristic times, women in the Middle Ages, women of the Reformation and Baroque ages, and of course, women of modern times. We will ask, what do we share with these influential women of our history? How do we relate to these women today? What was their influence on the formation of the ongoing development of the Church and Christianity? We will share stories, experiences, and reflections to create a wonderful bonding experience.
